

Coastal Risk Underwriters Announces Expansion into Louisiana and Florida

New York (April 27)– Coastal Risk Underwriters, a subsidiary of Insight Catastrophe Group, today announced that it will begin writing homeowners insurance in Louisiana and 15 counties in Florida.

Coastal Risk Underwriters (CRU) provides highly-rated insurance capacity to large national and regional specialty channels, as well as through independent agents and brokers. CRU already offers residential property capacity in Alabama, New York and South Carolina. The company anticipates expanding into Virginia later this year and several additional states in 2012.

Andy DiLoreto, Chief Executive of Insight said, "We are pleased to continue our expansion into Florida and Louisiana. We look forward to assisting our carrier and distribution partners solve their capacity needs in these challenging markets".

Terrence McLean, President of Insight, commented, "We have experienced significant growth in our original territories. We're glad to be able to provide an additional footprint for our products. Over time, we expect to add several more states". More information about the new program is available on CRU's website www.cru360.com.

In addition to providing property and homeowners capacity, Insight also markets its own patented risk and profitability analysis software services. Called Decision Support Services (DSS) the platform provides a comprehensive assessment of the economic impact of adding catastrophe-exposed business to an existing portfolio so that users can improve the quality of their risk decisions and help them achieve superior risk-adjusted returns. Additional information about DSS is available on Insight's website www.icg360.com.
